Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is Multifid coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it cures and takes out every particle of dirt, dirt and dandruff.

GOOPERS FORCES FLEET UNIONISTS TO REPEAT CRIME

American Labor Leader
Makes Huns Change Attitude
Before Admitting
Them to New Organization.

AMSTERDAM, July 20. (By the Associated Press)—The work of the International Trades Union congress yesterday was hindered by a protracted discussion in committee of the old international organization regarding the German declaration of the stand of German trades unionists during the war. The Germans generally maintained an unrepentant attitude until Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, told them plainly that if it were continued it would be impossible for workers of other countries to retain relations with them in the future. The German delegates thereupon somewhat relaxed.

The committee on its return reported as follows: "That the statement of Herr Sassenbach (German socialist) is incorporated in full; that the delegates expressed their regret that the German declaration confirm frankly and openly the spirit of Sassenbach's declaration; that if the avowed be frank, open and satisfactory, the conference will proceed to the order of the day; that if unsatisfactory, freedom of action be reserved. Against all expectations the congress adopted the report without debate after Sassenbach in a few words confirmed the German declaration. Sassenbach, who was a member of the committee, withdrew from voting. The other members included W. A. Appleton of England; Samuel Gompers of America and Leon Jouhaux of France.

The congress then proceeded to form a new international.

The position of the British and Americans in an unfair situation. They represent together more than 1,000,000 workers among the 1,700,000 reported at the congress, but have only nine votes of the total of 11 which may be cast on motions.

The main points of the resolution presented by M. Sassenbach follow: The trades unions always recognized that Germany acted wrongly in Belgium and always condemned her for her committed. German occupation of Belgium and deportation of Belgians was done without the consent of the workers; the attitude of the German workers at the outbreak and during the war was dictated by the desire to win the war; it was their conviction that Germany was fighting a defensive war. The workers of Germany always had been opponents of war and armaments and never gave assent to the government's imperialism.

The German workers recognize that the workers of other countries cannot appreciate or understand the social action of the German workers during the war, but these actions were forced on them by the severe struggle waged by the German nation.

"Let Jiggs Go To Dinty Moore's," Say - Two Little Girls

Two little Memphis girls who for the purpose of the story shall be just Marie and Hattie have seen Mr. Jiggs in the News Scimitar and disappeared so often in his efforts to escape his Amazonian wife, Maggie, and has failed so many times to get to Dinty Moore's that they have written the following letter out of pity to poor old Dinty who, they don't believe, is being brought up right.

"Please tell Mrs. Jiggs to be better to Mr. Jiggs to Dinty Moore's and be sure she fixes her hair different."

The editor has communicated with the artist, who is the author of "Bringing Up Father," and he promises to give Maggie a new coiffure and to try to soften her disposition if it is within the power of mortal man to do so.

Flyer Turns To Fields From The Lanes Of The Air

The hand that once directed the course of ships of the air will now guide the farm tractor, the hay mower and the fertilizer fork, for First Lieut. Edwin R. Shackleton of Park field and Joseph C. Macleod of Millington have purchased from P. M. Vaccaro 1,280 acres of land in Grenada county, Mississippi, and will engage in stock raising and general farming. The land lies in the bottom of the Yazoo river and adjoins a tract of some 5,000 acres already owned by Vaccaro.

Lieut. Shackleton left the lure of the land and instead of returning to the home in New York when he quits his post at Park field as flying instructor next week will live on the Grenada county plantation. The consideration paid for the tract and land is said to have been around $29,000.

Both sides are watching each other very carefully. The president has been in almost constant conference, first with the Republicans and now with the members of his own party who know the true inside affairs in the senate.

Probably his conferences with the Republicans on the ground that they were not getting him any nearer to the ratification of the treaty, and the Democrats on the ground that they were not getting him any nearer to the ratification of the treaty.

SEEK 25 POUNDS TO EAT

Miss McKenzie Gains 25 Pounds on Taking Tanlac.
Health Is Restored.

"I have gained twenty-five pounds on Tanlac and would willingly eat twenty miles to tell any sufferer how much it has helped me," said Miss Adena A. McKenney, 421 Sixth Ave., South Nashville, Tenn.

"I suffered from attacks of nervous prostration for eighteen months, she continued. 'I had no appetite and after eating anything my stomach would burn terribly. I would feel hot all over, my voice would seem to stop and then I would turn cold and numb. I was so nervous that I couldn't keep still and became weak. I could hardly get around.'

"By the time I had finished my second bottle of Tanlac my appetite had returned and my troubles began to leave me. That numb feeling disappeared, the burning sensation passed away and now I can eat anything I want. All my nervousness is gone, I sleep like a child, and my health is now fully restored."

Tanlac is sold in Memphis by Warlock Drug Co., 319 West Pharmacy, and all the leading druggists in practically every city, town and village in America.

WILSON ANSWERS LEAGUE CRITICS WITH MESSAGE

Says, in Submitting French Treaty, That League Members Have Final Word as to Whether to Go to War.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Special Correspondent of The News Scimitar.)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—President Wilson takes occasion through his message to the senate on the subject of the special French treaty to answer one of the principal objections to the covenant of the league of nations—the much mooted article 10. Opponents of the league have insisted that this article would require America to use military force to guarantee the territorial boundaries of all nations for an indefinite period of time, committing America to go to war without the consent of congress.

Mr. Wilson says in most explicit language that under the covenant no nation is required to use military force if in its own judgment such use is not desirable. For that reason, Charles E. Hughes has just made the same point in his proposal to attach to the covenant an interdict of article 10, forbidding no military or naval force shall be used except as sanctioned by congress.

Meeting Point Possible. Thus it will be seen that a common meeting point is not at all impossible if the two rival parties in the senate could dispose of the political embarrassments involved in coming together. Miss taken have been made on both sides. No one at the White House would admit it, but unquestionably the threat of senate Republicans to stop work on the treaty unless they receive the text of the French pact, had its effect in hastening Mr. Wilson to present the supplementary document.

Also it is more than apparent that the Republicans did not take kindly to the idea of Mr. Wilson going before the country just now and would have adjourned the senate, too, with the result that Mr. Wilson to avoid them the French treaty as a basis for their action.

So today, there came a shift in plans from the White House. It was definitely stated that Mr. Wilson would go on his transatlantic trip, but it was also indicated that he would not go before the middle of August and possibly later. Also it was very plain that the president is going before the American people whether the treaty and league are ratified in the interim or not.

If the treaty has been passed, then Mr. Wilson's speeches will partake of the nature of an explanation of the problems that he ahead to world readjustment. On the other hand, even the president's supporters do not expect the senate to act on the treaty much before the middle of September, so that Mr. Wilson may stay all his trip, but he is leaving the date of departure so vaguely in the future that the Republicans cannot very well adjourn the senate and point to his absence from Washington as a reason for their hesitancy.

Both sides are watching each other very carefully. The president has been in almost constant conference, first with the Republicans and now with the members of his own party who know the true inside affairs in the senate.

Wants It Understood.
For one thing, it is felt that the president can hardly afford to maintain an uncompromising position about interpretations. The suggestions conveyed to Senator Hughes by Charles E. Hughes cover almost the same ground as the protestations by friends of the president. Mr. Wilson has said in his message on the French treaty makes a statement which could be regarded from the viewpoint of international law as a statement of American policy just as much as the statement of President Monroe in 1823.

Although the president for some explanation from the president on the obligations of article 10 would not satisfy the Republicans, they want to see that congress will retain the war-making power, even under the league of nations.

The president is being urged to accept certain interpretations. He is expected to make a public statement defining the difference between interpretation and actual commitment. His message about the French treaty will prove a vital test of senatorial sentiment. Opponents of the league of nations who do not wish to have American forces fighting overseas in the future would logically be compelled to oppose also the French treaty, but Senator Lodge and other Republicans say they favor the pledge to aid France.

BOLSHEVISM IN BULGARIA SPREADS; REVOLT EXPECTED

LONDON, July 20.—Reports from Bulgaria by way of Berlin declared Bolshevism is spreading in that country. The two issues, carries the danger of confusing the public as to the obligation to go to war without the consent of congress, but the decision of Mr. Wilson to present the defensive agreement with France puts the whole question before the country with all its details. A declaration by the president on his willingness to accept certain interpretations of the covenant in the ratifying resolution will complete the record and then the issue will be clear. It is plain that Mr. Wilson couldn't go West until the lines of cleavage were made more definite. (Copyright, 1919, by David Lawrence.)
